

Famous Actress Tells How She Uses Derwillo To Beautify Her Complexion

MISS ETHEL CLAYTON.

New York—Miss Ethel Clayton, the clever young actress now successfully starring under the Paramount banner, is famous for her beautiful complexion. When her friends inquired about it she said, "It's all due to a toilet preparation called Derwillo which I use twice daily. The experience I have had prompts me to make my secret public. This wonderful Derwillo instantly beautifies my skin and its continued use has made the results permanent." When Mae Edna Wilder, the well known beauty specialist, was interviewed in reference to Miss Clayton's remarkable complexion, stated, "Anyone can have a beautiful complexion when they know how. It's a very simple process. I use the same article in my work, and until you try it you have no idea of the marvelous results. The very first application will astonish you. Go to the toilet counter of any drug or department store and get a bottle of Derwillo. Then make the following test: Examine your skin critically before your mirror, note carefully its appearance, then apply Derwillo as directed. After you have made the first application look in your mirror again and note the surprising change. A peach-like color mounts the cheeks; a baby softness comes to the skin; it makes the skin rosy-white, velvety and radiantly beautiful. It is wonderful for a dark, sallow skin, shiny nose, freckles, tan, oily skin, sun spots, coarse pores, pimples, blackheads, chapped, rough skin, redness, wrinkles and many other facial blemishes. Derwillo method is absolutely harmless and will not produce or stimulate a growth of hair. It is superior to face powder, as perspiration does not affect it, therefore it stays on better. Thousands who have used it have had the same results as Miss Clayton, and I am sure if you will give it a fair trial you will become just as enthusiastic as I am and always use it in preference to any other powder or beautifier.

"NOTE—When asked about Derwillo one of our leading druggists said, 'It is truly a wonderful beautifier, way ahead of anything we have ever sold before. We are authorized by the manufacturers to refund the money to anyone who is dissatisfied, and we would not permit the use of our name unless the product possessed unusual merit.' Some druggists may tell you they can't get DERWILLO and try to substitute something else on which they make more profit. Druggists can always get DERWILLO, from any wholesaler or manufacturer direct. If you can't get DERWILLO when you ask for it, walk out and try the next store, since DERWILLO has made such a phenomenal success it has many imitations, but you know counterfeiters are never as good as the genuine article. Insist on DERWILLO, then you will not be disappointed. It is sold in this city under an iron-clad money back guarantee by all department stores and up-to-date druggists, including Mosley-Robinson, Farmer-Ballard and the Washburn-Lyle stores."

Wording of Reservations and Preamble Seen as Dangerous to Sovereign Nations in Future and Is Not Liked.

BY DAVID LAWRENCE.
(Special Correspondent of The News-Scimitar.)

WASHINGTON, Oct. 2.—Foreign governments do not like the reservations to the peace treaty that have been adopted by the committee of foreign relations of the United States senate. They are hopeful that the United States will never present the reservations as at present phrased to the various foreign offices of the treaty. The different governments have no objection to reservations or interpretations that define and limit the original powers for acceptance because an awkward situation, unprecedented in diplomatic history, would be created if the United States were to apply to the provisions of the league of nations to operate, they must be kept free from interference as between the legislative and executive departments of the United States government.

Information as to the attitude which would be assumed by the principal powers in the event of the treaty being adopted by the committee of foreign relations of the United States senate, is a definite feeling that the preamble adopted by the senate committee which would bind Great Britain, France, Italy and Japan to accept the American reservations before they can be valid is embarrassing.

Had the senate specified its reservations and left it to foreign powers to remain silent, thereby indicating acquiescence much of the trouble would be removed. But the preamble insists that the governments of Great Britain, France, Italy and Japan accept the American reservations before they can be valid is embarrassing.

Had the senate specified its reservations and left it to foreign powers to remain silent, thereby indicating acquiescence much of the trouble would be removed. But the preamble insists that the governments of Great Britain, France, Italy and Japan accept the American reservations before they can be valid is embarrassing.

Would Be Danger.

For instance the reservation which specifies just how the American representatives to the league of nations are appointed, how the president is required to secure the approval of congress for all appointments, and how appropriations for the expenses of America's part in the league shall affect the action of the American representatives—all these things are matters which foreign governments say they ought not to be asked to pass upon as they involve constitutional functions of the legislative and executive branches of a sovereign nation.

They do not want to be burdened by a transference of sovereignty. They do not wish to establish any precedent whereby it might be assumed that foreign governments can dictate just now any nation shall choose its representatives to the league of nations.

They do not want to be involved in any constitutional controversy that may arise from the reservation of the United States under the constitution to conduct the foreign relations of the United States or the reservation of congress by an act of ratification to insist that both houses of congress instead of senate alone must approve of presidential appointments to league of nations.

As to the reservations, moreover, which would place the United States on an equal footing with Japan in relation to the Shantung settlement, the attitude of Japan, which would be well understood, she could not accept reservation affirming the right of the United States to withhold its assent without being placed in the position of condemning the settlement herself. Similarly France, Great Britain and Italy signed treaties with Japan pledging themselves to support her views on Shantung, and these countries have already, through their assent to the Shantung settlement. They could not reverse themselves.

Could Escape Crisis.

On the other hand, if the foreign governments were not required to express themselves formally as accepting or rejecting the reservations proposed by the United States senate, it would be possible for America to withhold her assent, while Great Britain, France, Italy and even Japan made no comment whatsoever, thus leaving the United States free to bring the matter up in future meetings of league of nations without embarrassment.

Foreign governments plainly do not wish to become involved in American political controversies. They are fully informed from day to day of the content going on in the American senate and they consider it advisable to say nothing in public that might be construed as leaning toward the executive or legislative branches of the government of the United States. Hardly any of them, for instance, would object to a reservation specifically stating what the Monroe doctrine is or how it should be applied. They recognize it as an American doctrine and therefore as capable of interpretation only by the United States, but they do not in advance commit themselves to an absolute acceptance of any interpretation whatever which may be expressed by the United States. That they say would be signing a blank check. They too must hold themselves free to accept or reject in diplomatic controversies that might arise any extension by the United States government of its powers over other sovereign governments who may be members of the league, is such an extension as an exaggerated notion of what the Monroe doctrine originally contemplated or has been hitherto understood as meaning.

Foreign governments will accept some reservations, but they would prefer that America in ratifying the treaty refrain from asking the powers to approve her points specifically. They fear that the door might be opened to reservations sought in their own countries where treaty has already been ratified but where opposition parties would seize the opportunity to reopen the whole business.

American reservations, if modified in scope and if stripped of the preamble resulting direct assent by the principal powers but they would not under such circumstances voice any disapproval but would tacitly accept the American reservations by the act of receiving the United States into the league of nations and by an exchange of ratifications which would mean that they legally held that the United States had ratified the treaty.

Business Men
Volunteer As Red Cross Speakers

That a representative body of business and professional men of Memphis will enlist as theater speakers for the Red Cross annual Red Cross week, was assured Wednesday, when the Rev. W. E. Clark, director of the theater speakers' division, made public the names of the first 14 men to volunteer.

The list is as follows:

Mr. Clark is having 20 speakers in his bureau. He has sent letters to several more prominent men, and Wednesday stated that he would be pleased to have volunteers.

It will be like a touch of wartime to the theatergoers, for the roll call speakers will be allotted time in much the same manner as were the four-minute men during the war. In fact, most of the men already chosen as speakers, served as four-minute men.

The DeSoto Street Murders

Horrible Condition of Affairs Under Joe Williams' Former Administration, As Shown By the Press At the Time

Here is an editorial from The Commercial Appeal on the De Soto Street murders in 1904. These murders were the culmination of the saturnalia of crime that flourished under the administration of Joe Williams as mayor. It is a part of that record of which Williams says he is proud, and upon which he is running for Mayor now.

(Editorial)

LAST NIGHT'S TRAGEDY

In a raid on one of the many disreputable dives that infest Memphis, one Deputy Sheriff was murdered last night and another fatally injured. This raid was one of a series that had been planned and partially carried out by a local magistrate. More than 100 men—black and white—had been captured, arraigned and required to give bond in this series of raids.

The Justice claims that public pressure in the name of order and decency forced him to act. Those who would discredit the motives of the Justice charge that fee-grabbing was the incentive.

It matters not whether it was for better morals for Greater Memphis, or for a more plethoric purse, the Justice's officers were vested with the authority of the law. They were armed and acting in the name of the State of Tennessee. They were attempting to suppress crimes forbidden by the statutes of the State. They were doing a good work, whether for their own aggrandizement or for better morals.

Those who resisted, who murdered and disarmed them, are assassins and criminals. Their names have been sworn to in warrants. These names are not unfamiliar. They are names which have been harked in petty politics and heard in criminal proceedings for a decade. They are names associated with the harboring and boarding of a class of criminals as dangerous and bold as ever plied their schemes in a frontier town or a lawless village of the Mexican border. Long-suffering, patient Memphis is growing tired of this. Every citizen knows that these places exist in Memphis. It is an idle and superfluous story to deny it.

Memphis is a link in a chain of cities where the worst criminal is reasonably sure of a harbor and a degree of latitude. The detectives know it—the police know it.

The Magistrate—whatever his motives—was doing what the police department failed to do. These dens of vice, where vagrant negroes and depraved whites meet and mingle in a saturnalia of crime, defying the law, and laughing at the brass buttons of authority, are better known to the police than to the rustic deputies of Justices' Courts.

While cotton planters call in vain for labor, the negro craps dive flourishes in Memphis and its hundreds of votaries gather nightly with the assured security from invasion. Negro vagabonds are fed from the kitchens of Memphis families. Steamboat men call vainly for labor at wages ranging from $75 to $100 per month. But the Front Street dives will not let the roustabouts go.

Who rushes forward as bondsmen when arrests are made? The men who are charged with complicity in last night's tragedy, or men of similar ilk and calling.

It is time for Memphis to call a halt upon these conditions. The power to end them is vested in the police department and the Shelby County Criminal Court, and the end must speedily come.

Do the people of Memphis intend to risk another such reign of horrible crime as The Commercial Appeal so graphically describes?

If so, they can assure themselves of it by electing Williams Mayor, for he does not propose to change his methods. In every speech of his campaign he defends his record; apparently there is nothing in it upon which he proposes to improve.

The only way for the people to make certain of a new deal in the enforcement of the criminal laws is to elect Paine and his associates to the head of the city government.
